SUNDAY RECREATION.
The matter of repeal of the city ordinance which makes possible the keeping of bowling alleys and billiard rooms open on Sundays perhaps will be brought up in the council tonight. Many of the councilmen are of the opinion that Janesville will have to take a more liberal stand in regard to Sunday recreation. Others feel that to make such a move would lay the council open to criticism.
It would appear that the matter should be handled in a broad-minded manner. Men who are employed in Janesville's industrial plants must have places to spend their rest periods. All of them cannot and will not make the same choice. This city is short on recreation facilities and as the population increases the shortage will be more pronounced.
With proper regulation of bowling alleys and billiard rooms, a great many of our citizens could enjoy their leisure time, and at the same time not violate any of the city laws. If the council repeals the Sunday closing law, the chief of police should be instructed to see that the regulations which will be made shall be observed to the letter.
It is certainly much better to have such places operating under proper regulations than to have private crap games, poker games and other forms of gambling operating under cover.
Many employers of labor are of the opinion that encouragement of Sunday recreation will aid greatly in keeping men employed here more contented with their jobs and prevent the weekly exodus to other cities.
Janesville will by no means be a pioneer in the matter of allowing such places to keep open on Sundays. Almost every city of any size in the state operates under a plan which allows these places to keep open certain hours on Sundays.

AMERICA DISCOVERED.
America stands before the world as a great concrete fact. The war has cast a flood of light upon it. America was not discovered in 1492; it was discovered in 1917 and 1918, by the rest of the world and also by ourselves.
America went to war for an ideal. It sent two million men across the sea and was preparing to send two million more, with other millions still in reserve. It raised billions for war purposes with an ease that amazed the world and scarcely touched its resources. It gave hundreds of millions for war beneficence. It organized its industrial facilities into a single machine of incredible powers. It revealed a spiritual capacity for sympathy, self-sacrifice and exalted loyalty of which we ourselves had never dreamed. The war came to an abrupt end when America had only begun to exert its plant strength, while almost unlimited resources were still in reserve. This was the nation which we saw in the light of a dazzling transfiguration only a few short months ago.
Let us not forget the vision, for already it is becoming apparent that this land of ours is infested with swarms of enemies to every ideal for which America stands. Impudently presuming upon the good-natured tolerance which has been so characteristically American, these vicious agitators have gone to almost unbelievable lengths in their attempts to tear down and to disintegrate. Most amazing of all, they have received the encouragement of various so-called "intellectuals" who have sought to obscure with a haze of theory and doctrine the stark question of good and evil.
Fellow Americans, let us see these things clearly and simply. Let us make no mistake about the meaning of the present disorder. It is not aimed at the correction of our defects; its fundamental purpose is destruction—destruction of our civilization, destruction of our nation and destruction of our ideals.
Two years ago we thought that America was good enough to sacrifice for, to fight for and, if need be, to die for. Do we still think so? Let the line be drawn clearly and sharply and let us take our stand with all the earnestness, alertness and determination that we possess. Let us show by our actions what we really think of America.

EFFICIENT, PERHAPS, BUT UNPOPULAR.
Quietly, steadily, surely, republican votes are being made by the activities of a corps of men in the treasury department at Washington. These men do not mean to make republican votes, and they believe they are doing their duty. No doubt they are conscientious, and in many if not in a majority of cases they may be technically right. Nevertheless, they are making good citizens hopping mad every day.
These men are going over income tax returns as far back as 1916, looking for flaws. If they think they have caught an error involving a few dollars, or a greater sum, they forthwith demand immediate payment. It is apparently useless to ask for details, or an explanation. If the taxpayer thinks he is being unjustly mulcted, and tries to bring about an examination of his books, to demonstrate by facts and figures that he has already paid enough, he gets the horse laugh. At least, he gets no consideration. "Pay or suffer," seems to be the slogan, and every man is presumed to be a tax dodger.
Most persons are disposed to say nothing and take their medicine, thinking that they are among the exceptional few. As a matter of fact, the extent of this practice of prying up extra dollars is widespread. The

AN AMERICAN TALKS
I'd rather be an American than any other race I know.
I'd rather see the Stars and Stripes above me everywhere I go.
Than any other flag that flies, for no man, who soe'er he be,
Can boast a better land than this which daily shelters mine and me.
Here those I love are safe from harm, my boys and girls may romp in play,
They are not early rushed to toll and broken in a cruel way.
Here other men than I stand guard, their chance in life to guarantee,
And schools are open wide to them to fit them for the years to be.
Here I may earn their daily bread and claim the many joys of life,
Here I may come from toil at night and find a happy, smiling wife.
The little home we're building here knows every comfort that we need,
And we may live our lives in peace and worship by our chosen creed.
Kings have not known such peace of mind when it has come their time to die,

Signals to Other World

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN, Director
Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau,
Washington, D. C.
Washington, Feb. 9.—While some other world is supposed to be trying to send wireless messages, some of our professors and scientists plan communication from our end. One of them is going up in a balloon to observe the planets more closely, and study ways of letting other worlds know that the earth is inhabited.
Another professor has invented a multiple-charge rocket which will explode at various points in its flight, thus providing additional motive power at each explosion. With this rocket he believes that he can test the character of the air two hundred miles above the earth; while a similar rocket built on a giant scale, to weigh say 1,200 pounds, would it properly direct the rocket.
Some wireless experts believe that we shall soon be able to exchange wireless messages with such of the planets as may be populated. The minutes was once set by an electrical authority as a reasonable length of time for a radio impulse to flash between the earth and Venus. This five minutes with the amount of time it would take an airplane to reach our nearest neighboring planet. A plain traveling steadily at 200 miles an hour could go almost 5,000 miles in 24 hours, and could cover a million miles in 48 hours. Venus is its nearest approach 25 million miles from us, and Mars is 35 million. This gives some idea of the distance of our neighbors. The speed of a wireless that it is estimated, could cross the void in five minutes.
Not First Signals
Whether some other world has mastered radio to a greater extent than the geniuses of the earth is not a matter of guesswork. This is the first time that mysterious signals have been received by wireless operators. Signor Marconi reported accurate transmissions a year ago, and some years before that another electrical expert had a similar experience.
That these wireless disturbances might possibly come from the planet Venus is the opinion expressed by Dr. Charles G. Abbott of the Smithsonian Institution.
"We have not yet proved the existence of life on Venus," says Dr. Abbott, "but conditions there are more favorable for life than on any of the other planets except our own."
"Mars," he maintains, "is absolutely incapable of supporting life, and therefore could not be the outside party trying to signal the earth."
Students of radio have attempted to explain these signals coming from some great distance as messages from another planet. As Mars has repeatedly been peopled by scientists and fiction writers, it is usually selected as the planet most likely to be peeping the earth. This idea is all wrong, according to Dr. Abbott. "Mars" he states is dry as any desert in the world. In fact, the Sahara would be quite damp in comparison with the fields of Mars. As water is essential to human existence, this precludes the possibility of life there.
No Clouds Around Mars
The dryness around Mars is concluded from the fact that there are no clouds surrounding it to create vapor. That there are no clouds on the dying planet was long ago decided by astronomers.
The idea of life on the planet was advanced through the discovery of the so-called canal of Mars. In 1877, some astronomers immediately decided that the network of straight lines discovered was a sign of irrigation system by which an ingenious race of Martians supplied their fields with moisture in a last stand for existence.
The source of the water supply, according to this theory, is the snow and ice fields at the poles. White circles are plainly visible in the sky of Mars at times, but astronomers differ as to their character. Some say they are deposits of frozen carbonic acid gas, which they suppose they are the result of a polar water supply. Others think that the white patches may be ice, but even so, frost, for it is believed that a layer a quarter of an inch thick would make the surface appear perfectly white.
Further seas of ice, but at the poles of Mars, it is difficult to conceive of sufficient water being obtained to irrigate six hundred canals stretching over thousands of miles. Imagine canals five or ten miles wide dug from Boston to Mexico City, and from Seattle to Atlanta, and the miles of canals, some reaching 600 such engineering projects, and you produced 24 pairs of shoes the first day.
Sheboygan.—The increasing cost of uniforms has resulted in an order by officials of the Wisconsin National Guard, putting all of its city trainmen in overalls and jumpers temporarily, at least until the cost of uniforms becomes more reasonable. All trainmen are dressed in blue denim, in compliance with the order.
Manitowish.—Father Reindl, in charge of the Catholic church at Kellnersville, died Friday evening. Father Reindl was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen J. Reindl of this city and was 30 years of age. He was ordained four years ago and had been in charge of the Kellnersville church for little more than a year. It is the second death in the Kellnersville church.

Around the State

Enn Clair.—On the advice of the city health authorities, the convention of the Northwestern Schoolmasters, including superintendents and principals, scheduled for Feb. 6 in this city, was postponed to Friday, March 19.
Enn Clair.—Sheriff Joseph F. Miller, Enn Clair, is all swathed in bandages and may lose the sight of his left eye as the result of an auto accident suffered while on the job. He was driving a car when it was struck by a truck. The sheriff was taken to his destination, some 50 miles distant. The end of the journey he slipped over and for some time was pinned under the car. He finally extricated himself and walked three miles to the first town where he received first aid. A badly cut and bruised face, injured eye and body bruises constitute his injuries.
Rhinelander.—Members of the Rhinelander school board, who have heretofore been appointed by the mayor, may be forced to run or lose office in the future. A resolution calling for a special election to be held Feb. 24 to determine whether or not the board will be appointed was introduced by Alderman E. J. Christ, board leader, at the last session of the council, and was passed.
Rhinelander.—Stanley Blomski, accused of the murder of his 6-year-old son, Alban, plead not guilty in the municipal court and the case was adjourned for one week.
Rhinelander.—That a horde of rats infesting warehouses and buildings in this city is destroying large quantities of food is the statement made by G. A. Servis, Algoma, deputy state food inspector. Citizens are urged by the report, and the Rhinelander Advance Association has called a meeting to determine some course of action in ridding the city of the pests.
Sheboygan.—The Levenshoe Shoe company has made plans for erecting an addition that will give 143,000 feet of additional floor space. It is expected to increase the making force from 110 to 250 men and the daily output from 500 to 1,500 pairs of men's shoes. When the factory commences operations April 1, 1919, it

Sturgeon Bay.—One hundred and fifty ship carpenters and ship workers are demanding back pay from the Leatham & Smith Towing and Wrecking company for work on government contracts. The ship workers and carpenters allege that the shipyard firm did not pay the amount established by the government scale for work on government contracts. The workers are asking for the difference between the wages they received and the government scale. ARMENIAN RELIEF CAMPAIGN OPENS WITH WORKERS BUSY

Campaign for the support of 100 Armenian children began officially today under the leadership of the local Near East Relief committee, of which Judge Harry L. Maxfield is chairman.

While many of the lodges, churches, and schools have contributed to the cause few individual donations have been made. John Gross, county secretary, said today that if the individuals did not subscribe, the drive would certainly fail in this city. There are still lodges which have taken action, but Mr. Gross said he hoped at the next meetings they would decide to adopt one or more orphans.

An Armenian child can be supported for one year at the cost of $80. This money does not have to be donated in a lump, but the donor may pay $5 a month. The complete payment is made. Those who wish to make donations may secure pledge cards from J. M. Beck, county treasurer, at the Rock County National Bank, from John Gross, county secretary, at the Chamber of Commerce, or from Violet McKee, Stroud, child recruiter, secured nearly $200 at the Apollo theater this week-end. Violet and her father, John Gross, are on the city committee of official workers. They have pledged themselves to campaign for the Near East throughout the city, which lasts until Feb. 15. Wally Nelson, a local child, has donated his services during the drive. He will speak at local theaters. Ministers of the various churches made appeals yesterday for support of the drive.

THOSE ILL ASKED TO AVOID THEATERS

An appeal to persons knowing themselves to be ill with colds or just recovering from influenza to keep away from theaters and other public amusement places, was made today by Dr. W. C. Welch, city health officer. Through an order issued by him, policemen yesterday made a canvass of all theaters and reported a great amount of coughing and sneezing going on in the audiences.

Unless people not in good health cooperate with the health board by remaining away from theaters until fully recovered, it may be necessary to close them for several weeks, Dr. Welch said.

Reports of influenza cases in the city totaled 326 at 2 o'clock this afternoon. There have been 11 deaths from influenza pneumonia, of which were people over 80 years of age, the records show.

TWO FLUE BLAZES MAR CHIEF'S RECORD

Two chimney fires in 25 hours ruined the fire department's hopes for going through a week without responding to an alarm. A flue blaze at the Grant school at 8:20 o'clock Saturday evening proved the flue. Had it happened four hours later the record of a week of inactivity would have been established.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I love the heart but cannot marry me on account of a dependent mother who wishes him to keep single for her. He says I will have to wait until she has passed away.

Of course he gives me a little encouragement, sometimes and says, "You won't have to work so very long." I am 33 myself and work very hard at my position. I am desirous of a home and children. I love him dearly. If I wait, which may be many years, my heart's desire will not be fulfilled and I will have him perhaps as a dependent.

What would you advise me to do?

PRERIPED. The man has a wrong conception of duty. Since his mother is dependent upon him he should see that she is clothed, fed and provided with as good a home as he is able to give. But all this is possible if he marries. If his mother is selfish enough to wish him to remain single with her, he should not gratify that wish.

The woman a man loves also has her claim upon him. She is entitled to marriage in her early womanhood. If the man does not marry although he loves her, he is neglecting his duty to her.

The threat of you, your mother, your home, together at least you and the man will be happier. If you are considerate of his mother and try to win her love, suggested in keeping the home happy for all three.

Explain to your fiance that he is depriving you of your right to a home and his duty to both you and his mother.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 23 years old and have been married three years. I haven't been happy since I was married. I had so much trouble I applied for a divorce twice.

She Married an Average Man

By ZOE BECKLEY.

"You have made up your mind, then, that you are not going back to Jim?" asked Athena Hunt, with the same unusual look of gravity she has had ever since I told her how I refused to accompany my husband to his home.

"Yes, said I firmly. (Time and thought and loneliness have hardened me. I feel as if I were encased in steel.) "Besides, I went on, "I tell you Jim will not reconsider things. He has told me he is tired of me and my temperamental, and has said his last word."

"Has it ever occurred to you that if Jim has tired of you, your temperamental others might, too?"

I glared indignantly at Athena. She never used to talk to me so. "What do you mean, 'other men'?"

"I tell you I want to go my way alone. I don't care what anybody thinks of me and my temperamental. I must work out my own salvation," I mocked Athena.

"But you won't travel far on life's road alone. It is not in your nature. The assets of a woman are her beauty and her normal. A woman may be ever so capable, ever so independent, ever so unusual—and I grant you are just the same. She wouldn't be nearly so capable, independent, etc., without one. Marriage is a sort of hallmark, a diploma. It is like a seal of approval. It is not so important in itself, perhaps, but not to have it puts a crimp in woman's progress."

"But I've had my experience, been hallmarked, gotten my diploma, earned my degree," I argued. "Barnum!" said Athena, with raised eyebrows. "That is just the point. I don't agree that you have earned it. You got it, but marriage is like any other study. It takes a lot of hard work to be successful at it. You are running away without putting in the hard work. The first real trial of character you balk; then you gallop off into pastures new. You will get interested in some other man. Will this other man, or men, be more likely to put up with you and your temperamental than Jim has been?"

"You mean there is something wrong with my character?"

"I mean just that," said Athena, and she quickly told me that my freakish hysteria that has come over you. If you allow this rebellious mood to have its way, Ann, it will weaken your moral fiber as sure as you are a living woman. You are like a mettlesome horse that has gotten its head. You are not thinking. You are just running away from the first man strong enough to stop you. Drink with your little taste of freedom, things will have a false glamour, and then then Athena finished with a shrug.

"Then what?" I demanded, feeling my anger rise.

"Then you will trot eagerly into adventure, which will soon become misadventure. You will be in that position where it is not only to deride, but to treat you as a young, attractive, vivacious woman separated from her husband for no good reason. Men just naturally make prey of such women."

"You must think me weak indeed!" I cried.

"Then prove your strength," said Athena gravely and left me. (To be continued.)

Small Round Turban Popular In Spring Millinery Style

By ELOISE. Striking colors prevail in the January that displays and one is forcibly impressed with brown and green. It seems a bit strange that so much green should be seen this season, especially since it was pushed a year ago. Such, however, is the case. Satin plays a big part in the present millinery showing and likewise velvet, the latter used for facings on straw hats. Except for southern wear there are not many large hats seen. The small round turban for the most part is turban effects, and even the afternoon hats are usually small tulio or lace creations.

The first straw hats always show a definite touch of renaissance models. It seems that after the dark colors of the winter season there are always a certain number of women who must have a brilliant color just for the psychological effect. This hat pictured is of a brilliant cerise shade. It is a novel turban effect and shows an unusual trimming idea in the cerise ribbon to match the hat. The hat is a hat makes a smart topping for the new spring suit or the one-piece frock.

"No, huh," agreed the man. "Too much space between the teeth and the hindlocks. Though, went on Beedles judiciously.

"And his tail—a little short for his diameter, and his ears are a little too close to the end," continued Beedles critically.

"Yes, huh," agreed the man. "And those spots are kinda peppered all over him—in no one particular place, sorta uneven like—here and there. Outside of that, not such a bad animal, except perhaps for his front legs—they're too far away from his feet."

"Yes, huh," acquiesced the colored man. "Yo see, huh, I don't own de dog—'de jes' takin' him fo' a walk."

"A horrible suspicion entered Beedles' mind."

"What's her name?" he demanded.

"Mrs. Beedles, huh."

And he escorted the puppy back home, while Beedles leaned weakly against a utility tree and waited till the coast was clear.

La Crosse—Forty men employed in winter river improvement at Lynxville, south of here, are ill with the influenza and the work has been abandoned by the few well men, who are forced to nurse the sick quarantined in houseboats and shacks. Capt. W. A. Thompson, district government engineer, has been appealed to for help.

Apple Custard—Take one quart flour

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

There is one class of workers which has almost the whole public behind it in its request for better pay. The school teachers who are having such a hard time to organize for their services need in the public backing they can get. There may be some who fear that taxes may have to be raised to meet the increase in teachers' pay with the reason are against their demands, but all just people are for the school teacher.

Miss Alice Deal, president of the High School Teachers' union, is leader in the campaign which will be made throughout the country for a general raise in pay for the teachers of all grades. Miss Deal has been connected with the teaching profession for many years and she will be an able and efficient head for the campaign. It is hoped that every teacher and every mother will give her all the help she needs in working for her cause.

SUFFRAGE IN FRANCE. Jules Guesde, the veteran socialist leader in France, has been elected a member of the chamber of deputies, has introduced a bill in the chamber which would give women civil, political and economic rights equally with men. Three classes of the bill provide: First, all registered dispositions establishing the inferiority of women as compared with men are hereby suppressed; second, women are admitted to benefit by all laws which hitherto have applied only to men; third, all future laws will affect the human being, without distinction of sex.

Six prominent deputies of various groups in the chamber have all come out in print in favor of the bill. "The world," said M. Guesde recently, "has scarcely awakened from the bloody nightmare into which the errors of society as it is now constituted plunged it. The social reform which must follow can never be realized without the close collaboration of all human beings."

ODD BITS ABOUT WOMEN. Municipal suffrage has been granted women in 24 towns of Iowa. Iowa was the first state to elect women as county superintendents of schools.

The late Susan B. Anthony's prophecy of universal suffrage in 1920 will almost fully appear on her birthday, which occurs this month.

Cardinals Beat Racine 42-30; Bar Pitching Freaks

LOCAL PLAYERS FIND EX-ARMY QUINTET IS EASY MEAT

The Army joined the Navy Saturday night, that is the part of it that came here from Racine to play basketball against the Lakota Cardinals, and went to sea. They rode the rough waves of a Janesville ocean of defeat and were washed up on the shores of dismay with the score 42-30 against them.

In practice the ex-service men, who came here claiming the championship of the 88th division, A. E. F., threw some half-raising long shots. On the floor they were lost. Though they scored 18 points to 15 of the Cardinals in the second half, that was not much to their favor because the Lakotas took their time in that period and stalled through.

Racine no trouble. Only for five minutes—the opening period—the visitors appear dangerous. After Dermody, Fifield and Dalton had shot the score to eight points in the work of Zandi and Alaxstead, forward and guard respectively, to run their markings to six. But when the Cardinals overtook the handcap of the enemy wearing "red shirts" the local boys sailed away with perfect ease.

Rollie Williams, feeling poorly, and several of the other members of the Lakota five of form, made the game uninteresting. While Williams displayed some of his whirling pivots, they were not the usual snappy style. Kybo Brown, Janesville's lanky center, played a hard game, played it hard because here he is leaving to attend to private business duties. In his efforts to be on the ball all the time he broke up many a Racine pass and managed to slam in three field baskets.

Most of the goals made by Racine were due to the Cards leaving the forwards unguarded for brief periods. Zandi had a habit of hanging down under the basket, enabling his mates to feed the sphere to him.

Manchester's Sensation. Racine took the floor with their battle cry. But they were dismayed to find the Cardinals chewing the meat with zest. Their method, which was to try long shots, which secured, in most instances, behind the backboard. One, however, shot by "Red" Manchester from three-quarters down the court, hit the iron to drop down the net with snap.

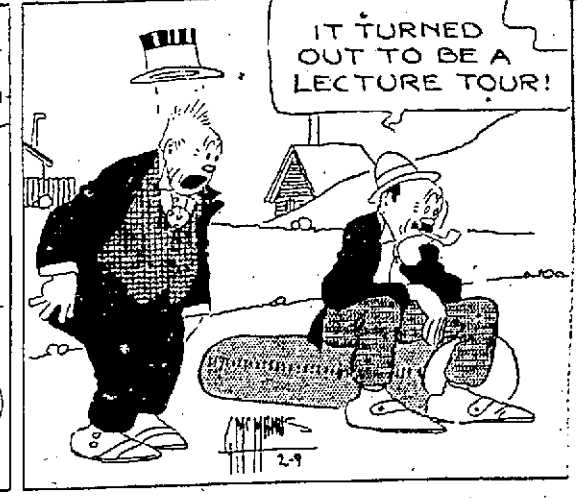

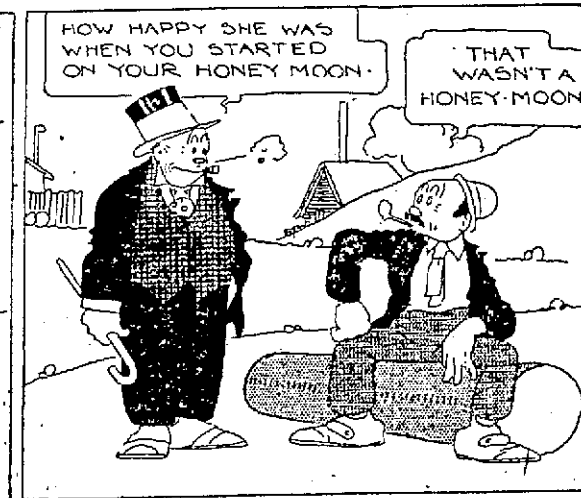

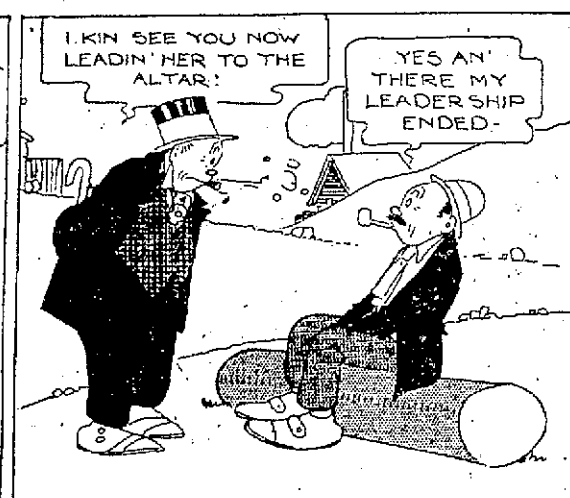

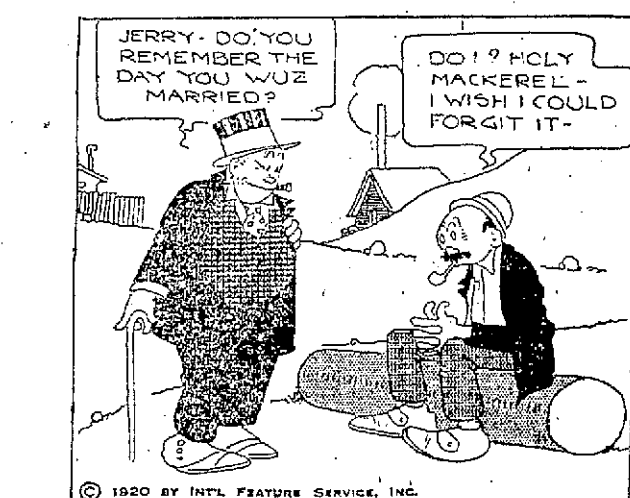

Dalton, playing running guard for the Cards, added to the count by six field goals. He was outdone, however, by Zandi of Racine, who made nine. Cassidy, the Cards light sub, made two the shots in the last few minutes of play when the local boys into a swing of short passes and fed them to him.

WANDERLUST
There's something calls me back again.
To walk the roads I used to know.
To roll a rover's pack again.
Take staff and go!

I want to find the stream again
Where willows waved and poppies grew.
I want to find my dream again
Of youth and you.

I want to feel the silt again
Beneath these wandering feet of mine.
To catch the robin's lit again
At Pan's own shrine!

I want to seek and see again
The fairy-folk that guard the wood.
To tell them I am free again
And life is good!

I want to climb the height again
And see the valley, bright with noon.
To watch the grey at night again
Beneath the moon!

There's something calls me out again
To meet the laughing morning star.
Oh, laggard heart, be stout again!
For it is true.

From the number of medals handed to the officers who fought the battle of Washington, says ex-Sergeant S.O.I., it looks as though there were more heroes in the second Army of the Potomac than there were in the first.

THE OLD DIARY
(A year ago.)
Couchy-le-nut, Thursday.
Rain. Still got the forty centimes. Red bought. Rumor we're going home as a unit next week. Inspection. Put in for a 24-hour pass, anywhere. Rumor we get our commissions next month. Offered three and half francs for my slicker. Told the frog I'd probably sell tomorrow; looks as though it would clear up. Stayed home and wrote Mary.

Friday.
Quit raining at noon. Rumor we're going to get special duty in Paris and go home with the President. Turned in summer underwear. Frog came around for the slicker again. Held out for four francs and there in four bags of bull and he came across. Am going to the Cafe des Postes. Believe my commission will come through. Got out the old Ben Browne that I traded the luger for, and polished it up. Will probably be able to wear it on my leave to the Riviera. Am going to the Cafe des Postes.

Saturday.
Satin cuts and dogs. Was late last night and of course they held a check. Put on guard just after I had the company clerk squared and everything. Wish I hadn't sold the slicker.

"No," interrupted the ex-buck, "I'll just make it for the duration. If you don't mind."

BOB M'LEAN LOSES SKATING TITLE TO NORWEGIAN RACER

Christiana, Feb. 8.—Oscar Mathiesen of Christiania has won the world's ice skating championship from Robert McClean of Chicago. The final races of the series were held yesterday and Mathiesen won both of them—the 1,500 metres and the 500 metres.

On Saturday the American took the 5,000 metre event, while Mathiesen defeated him in the 500 metre sprint.

The contests were held in cloudy weather, but the ice was in good condition. There was enough wind, however, on Sunday to prevent new world's records for the distances.

McClean led throughout the 1,500 metre race, but Mathiesen passed him near the end.

In the 500 metre race McClean got off first, but on the first lap he took the inner swing for the outer swing and seemed to stop for a moment. He continued leading, however, up to the last two and a half laps, when he appeared to become exhausted. Mathiesen then passed him and won by three-quarters of a lap.

An enthusiastic crowd witnessed the events on Sunday. The king and queen and Prince Olav were present. The royal family, with the American minister and his wife, were in the royal box.

In the 1,500 metre event, McClean started out like a whirlwind, making the first 500 metres in 40 5-10 seconds. This outclassed Mathiesen's world record of Saturday, which was 43 3-10 seconds. But the American apparently overestimated himself in this burst of speed, and Mathiesen succeeded in passing him and winning by a fraction of a second.

In the last contest of the series, the 10,000 metres, McClean was decisively beaten. He said that he was handicapped in this by the air being too light, which interfered with his breathing.

Toronto.—Bolshevik troops have entered Odessa according to a wireless message from the soviet government at Moscow.

London.—If I hadn't sold the slicker I would have had money to get that extra bottle of booze, and I wouldn't have been late for check, and I wouldn't be on guard in the rain in this overcoat. Haven't had a letter for three weeks. Don't think my commission's coming through. Application for leave returned, disapproved. Rumor we're going to be attached to the Quiver's Registration Service and kept here until the last man is buried.

HE HAD EXPERIENCE
"Will you promise to love me for ever and ever, dear?" she asked.
"No," interrupted the ex-buck, "I'll just make it for the duration. If you don't mind."

PURDUE FIVE SETS ILLINI MERRY CHASE

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 9.—Purdue ran away from Illinois in a sensational game of basketball Saturday, defeating the "Big Ten" leaders by a score of 36 to 20. Purdue jumped into the lead at the very start and was never in danger after the first few minutes of play.

The first half ended 23 to 10 in Purdue's favor, and the Bolonians went into the second half with renewed energy, running their count up to 35 before the visitors scored another point. White, who had been out of the game for two weeks, went back in the Purdue lineup and played a wonderful game, scoring 17 points for his team.

Carney was the chief point scorer of the Illinois five, making 15 points. Miller, as usual, played a brilliant guarding game for Purdue. Lineup:

SENTIMENT AGAINST TRICK DELIVERIES IS BEFORE RULES BOARD

Chicago, Feb. 9.—Cries of the baseball managers and discussions of the fans against the spitball and other take-a-lot deliveries of the pitcher are getting their hearing now before the magnates. Yesterday at an informal meeting of the big moguls of the joint rules committee of the National and American leagues, it was decided that such methods must be stopped.

Today it is planned to write the changes into the 1920 rules when the official conference is held. The committee that will decide is composed of Clark Griffith, Washington, and Connie Mack, Philadelphia, representing the American league; and President Dreyfuss of the Pirates and President Veck of the Cubs.

However, there is a possibility that grace will be given the hurlers through an extension of time to give them a chance to develop natural pitching. Present writers may be permitted to use the trick style this season but no new players will be allowed to use it, according to indications.

The spit, shine, emery and licorice balls all must go, it was indicated, along with all other unnatural deceptive pitching. That the "spitter" stand-by of a number of the game's most famous moundsmen, would be dealt with leniently was the consensus of opinion, however. It was indicated at the meeting of the rules committee yesterday that it would be given a two months' lease on life, possibly a full year while its experiments adopted a more conservative style.
